

Panel E

Bioskills Laboratory Facility Accreditation

Kathy Johnson, EdM, Co-Moderator
Senior Manager, ACS Program
Accreditation of Education Institutes

Panelists

- Margaret Deuel, RN, RAC, Director
Education and Special Projects
American Association of Tissue Banks
- Harsh Grewal, MD, FACS, FAAP
The Institute for Clinical Simulation and Patient Safety, Temple University
- Susan Mazzola, Administrator,
Center of Excellence for Laparoscopic &
Minimally Invasive Surgery, University of Miami School of Medicine

Panelists

- Bryan Hanypsiak, MD
Director of Medical Education, Arthrex
Company
- Peter Indelicato, MD, Professor of Orthopaedics, Director of Sports Medicine,
University of Florida
- Pat Cichler, RN, Executive Director,
The Orthopaedic Learning Center and Co-
Moderator of this session

Objectives of Panel

- Learn about tissue procurement and accreditation standards
- Discuss the American College of Surgeons accreditation standards and process
- Identify opportunities for accreditation
- Other pertinent topics

Who's Going to Talk about What?

- Margaret – Tissue procurement and accreditation standards
- Harsh – ACS Accreditation Program Requirements and Process
- Susan – What its like to go through the ACS Accreditation Process
- Peter – What does accreditation and standards mean from a practicing surgeon's point of view
- Bryan – What does accreditation and standards mean from a commercial company's point of view
- Pat – Questions that need to be answered about how bioskills labs do their business

Definition of Accreditation and Standards...

- According to dictionary.com....
- Accreditation means – To certify (ie a school) as meeting all formal and official requirements of academic excellence, curriculum, facilities, etc
- Standard means – A rule or principle that is used as a basis for judgment